the best farming towns in Kennebec county, a road that is generally known as one of the best in the State, and the constant topic of conversation was the exceedingly rough, and in many places actually unsafe condition of the road. Except in a few rare instances it was impossible to trot a horse half a mile without bringing him up on account of some bad place in the road, and often it was necessary to make him come into a walk three or four times in going that distance. The frest had thrown to the surface immense boulders, which actually endangered both horse and carriage, and there were numerous culverts over which riage, and there were numerous culverts over which

Then of course the first work the farmer attends to after the ground is free from frost, is the preparation of his fields and the planting and sowing of seed. This is a necessity and must be done or existence fails. When this is completed all hands turn out and work upon the roads, and during the first and second weeks in June, we pity the traveler who is so unfortunate as to be obliged to pass any great distance over the roads of Maine. a little excited, stop him five or ten minutes, let him become calm; go to the balky horse, pat him and speak gently to him; and as soon as he is over his excitement, he will, in nine cases out of ten, pull at the word. After you have gentled him awhile, and his excitement has cooled down, take him by the bits; turn him cach way a few minutes as far as you can; gentle him a little; unrein him; then step before the balky horse, and let the other start first, then you can take them anywhere you wish. A balky horse is always high-spirited and starts quick; half the pull is on before the other starts; by standing before him the other starts first. By close application to this rule, you can make any balky horse pull. If a horse has been badly spoiled you should hitch him to the empty wagon, and pull it around a while on level ground; then put on a little load and increase it gradually, carcaning as before, and in a short time you have a good work-horse."

As will be seen, he has tested it with the most gravity grounder.

Elecampane is a plant well known to most persons, and is to be found in many of our gardens. Immediately after being bitten take one and a half canose of the root of the plant—the green root is perhaps preferable, but the dried will answer, and may be found in our drug stores, and was used by me—slice or bruise, put into a plot of fresh milk, bell down to half a pint, strain; and when sold drink it, fasting at least six hours, afterward. The next morning, fasting, repeat the dose, using two canons of root. On the third morning take another dose, prepared as the last, and this will be sufficient. It is recommended that after each dose nothing be sales for at least six that after each dose nothing be saten for at mean six hours.

I have a son who was bitten by a mad dog eighteen years ago, and four other children in the neighborhood were also bitten; they took the above dose, and are alive and well to this day. And I have known a number of others who were bitten and applied the same remedy.

It is supposed that the root contains a principle which, being taken up by the bleed in its eirculation, counteracts or neutralises the deadly effects of the virus of hydrophobia.

I feel so much confidence in this simple remedy that I am willing year should give my mass in connection.

The slope from the kitchen should not be thrown out at the back door or window, or near by on the ground, as is the case in a great number of families; for this is very unpleasant and naussating, and no doubt is often the source of disease to the family.

All the greany slope should be given to the hogs every day. If you do not like to give then to your ctock, heal two or three handred bushels of vegetable mould to some convenient place, and put the slope on this pile. As soon as the pile becomes saturated, heal an addition of one hundred bushels, and put evenly over it.

This heap may be in a circular or square shape, as you prefer; but it should be hollow as the top, so that all the slope will run to the course when thrown upon it.

The Coliseum under gas light presented a most brilliant and gorgeous appearance, over 50,000 gas lights being ablaze to illuminate the interior. The word "Peace," in mammoth letters in gas work, was at the north end of the brillding.

The orchestra comprised 500 musicians, exclusive of 100 members of the Band under Dodworth.

The ball broke up about 1 c'clock.

On Friday, the mammoth building was again filled to its fall capacity, including standing room. The programme was strictly classical and among the suidence were many musical Professors and critical persons, who unite in pronouncing the whole performance a success in every respect.

Adelaide Phillips sang an aris which was encoredate receiving a complete evation from the audience, and a most enthusiastic recognition from the grand chorus. The singing by the chorus was exceedingly fine, eliciting repeated applause.

Doring the intermission Mayor Shurtleff introduced George Peabody to the audience and he was received with great cheering.

On Saturday the closing performances of the National Peace Jubilec were given by from seven to nine thousand school children, attracting a large and delighted audience. Ole Bull performed a solo. Parepa and Adelaids Phillips sang a dust and other pieces, all of which were encored and repeated. The closing piece was the 100th psalm, sung by the children, audience joining. Several children fainted during the concert overcome by the heat and excitement, but with no more serious results. The members of the orchestra presented Gilmore, the prejector of the Jubilee with a gold watch and cham. At a meeting of the newspaper reporters in the press room after the concert, Amos F. Learned, of Associated Press, pressiding, Justice Press, committee, to Gilmore and Tourjee, and to Manager Milligen of the Western Union Telegraph, for facilities furnished, were passed. The meeting broke up with cheers for Gilmore, the Jubilee, and the City of Boston.

The supplementary concert of the great Peace Jubilee Festival came off in the Coliscum in the evening before an audience of about fifteen thousand and proved a great success.

Ole Bull participated in the concert and was conducted by Messrs. Gilmore, Zerrahn and Eichberg and the former had a very warm resception.

In cleven years the sale of the BUCKEYE has increased free 25 MACHINES to 20,000 IN A SINGLE SEASON, and over 100,000 are now in use in the UNITED STATES. It has received the HIGHEST PREMIUMS at the most important Field Trials ever held in any Country.

ITS GREAT DURABILITY HAS BEEN THOROUGHLY ESTABLISHED, and it is everywhere known and recognized as the Standard of Excellence in Material and Workmanship, as well as Perfection of Principle. Is a very superior quality of Pure Natural Leaf Tea. It has a flue, delicate, aromatic flavor, and it is very strong. It is a soluction of the choicest leaves from the best cultivated Tea districts of China. Vast numbers of the Chinese people worship the Sun as the highest and purest object of excellence, and as they designate the Emperor of China "Ills Imperial Highents, Erother of the Sun, Emperor of the Celestial Flowery Kingdom," it naturally follows that whatever commodity or object to which they apply the double title of "Sun-Sun" must necessarily possess the highest qualities of purity and imperial excellence. And that is exactly what we claim for our Gener Sun-Sun Cmor—that it is perfectly pure, of a choice, rich flavor, very full -that it is perfectly pure, of a choice, rich flavor, very full strength, and conductve to health as well as pleasure.

GUVERNHERT HOPPITAL FOR THE ISLAMS.

Near Washington, D. C., Dec. 12, 1868.

THOMAS H. DODGE, Esq., Woocester, Mass:—Dear Sir: I take pleasure in bearing testimony to the excellence of the Union Mower. One of the first Machines manufactured (in 1802 I think), has been in use at the Hospital ever sizes, and has moved about forty (40) acres of grass twice each year. This mechanical construction is superior to most other Agricultural machinery with which I am acquainted, and its limbility to get cut of order reduced to a minimum.

The New Union Mower, which you farmished the Hospital hast apring, (ordered missily on account of a large increase of the amount of grass to be cut,) is superior to the first in some details of constructive, and has cut the equivalent of about fifty (60) are of grass without getting out of order in any particular.

The Whittomah Hay Rake which you farmished with the last Mower, was in constant use during the last haying session, and gave entire natisfaction.

Very respectfully, your Obedient Servant,

"Then I am willing to divide the money, for I can easily raise the hundred dollars on the land. My brother will do that. But I imagined that you would prefer the land, for I knew the soil was good though quite rooky. However, what says Peter?"

"Why I will take the land," returned Peter, "or I will divide equally with Walter—each of us to take half the land." Walter. "I could not work it. I should hardly like o descend from clerkship to digging and delving in the freek and cowhide boots."

"Then it is easily settled," rejoined Peter, "fir I should prefer the land."

Walter was pleased with this, and before night he had the hundred dollar bill in his pocker, and Peter had the warranty deed of the four acres of land upon the hill-side. Both of the young men belonged to the village, and had always lived there. It was only five miles from the city, and of course many city fashious were prevalent there. It was under the influence of this fashion that Walter Sturgis refused to have anything to do with the land.

Times were dall, and business poor, even though it was early spring. Peter White's first object after having got the deed of thin land, was to hunt up some kind of work. If he had been a mechanic he might have found some place, but he knew no trade except that of miseman and book-keeping. A whole week he searched in vain for employment, but at the end of that time he found an old farmer who wanted a hand, though he could not afford to pay much. But Peter finally, and with the advice of Mr. Somers, made an arrangement of this kind:—He would work for the old farmer (Mr. Stevens) steadily until the ground was open, and he should have helf the time to devote upon his own land; and part payment for his services, Stevens was to help about the ox work that the youth might need. Next Peter went to the hotel, where there was quite a stable, and copaged a hundred loads of manure, the landlord promising to take his pay in produce when harvest time came. So Peter White put on a blue freek and cow-hide boots and went to work for farmer Stevens.

In the meantime Walter Sturgis had been to the ble that was Peter White, in that blue frock and those coarse boots?

On the next day a relation from the city came to visit Walter. The two walked out, and during the day Walter saw Peter coming towards them with his team. He was hauling lumber which Mr. Stevens had been getting out during the winter. Walter saw how coarse and humble his quondam clerk-mate looked, and he knew that Peter would hall him if they met; so he caught his companion by the arm and dedged into a by-lane. Peter saw the movement, and understood it, but he only smiled.

By-and-by the snow was all gone from the hill-side. The wintry garb was removed from the apot before it left other places, for Peter's lot lay on the southern slope of the hill, and thus had the advantage of the warm sun all day, without any of the cold north and cast winds. The youth found his land very recky, but none of them were permanent; so his first move was to get off some of those obstructions; and as Mr. Stevens' land was not yet clear from snow, he was able to give his young workman considerable assistances. They took two yeks of oren and two drags, and went at it, and in just five days every rock was at the foot of the slope, and made into a good stone wall. Peter them hauled his hundred loads of manure which he had bought for seventy-five dellars, and part of it he plowed in, and part he saved for top-dressing.

it would cost about as much to till such land as the produce would be worth."

"That would depend upon how you worked it," aid Peter, dryly.

"O, yes, I suppose so. But you are willing to sell out, I suppose."

"Curtainly."

The man's eyes began to brighten.

"How much should you want for it?" be asked.

"Well, I don't know. What could you afford to pay a great deal more than it is worth. Bather than not have it I would pay, well—say—two hundred dollars, or two hundred and fifty at the outside."

"I don't think there is much use of our talking, str."
